2. How super works

Superannuation (super) is a compulsory savings scheme to help you save for retirement. It is one of the most tax-effective investments in Australia due to government tax concessions.

Prime Super

Your super is made up of compulsory contributions made by your employer (called superannuation guarantee (SG) contributions) and you can add before and/or after-tax money to grow your super savings.

You may also be eligible for a government co-contribution, subject to meeting eligibility criteria.

You can generally choose your super fund. As super is likely to be one of the largest investments you make during your lifetime, it may be a good idea to keep your super altogether in one fund, such as Prime Super.

If you change jobs, you can keep your existing super fund. From 1 November 2021, your new employer will need to identify and make SG contributions to your current active fund.

Whether or not you have a current fund, you have a right to choose which super fund your employer's SG contributions are paid to. If you are considering Prime Super, make sure you read our Member Guide – Health Division to make an informed decision. If you do not make a nomination, and your employer cannot find your existing account, you will usually join your employer's Default fund.

You can transfer to a new fund at any time and close an existing super account, but before you change, check and assess any loss of insurance benefits and fees or costs.

Super is for your retirement, so there are rules around when and how much you can withdraw from your account and limits on how much money you can put into the tax-effective super environment.

 You should read the important information about how super works before making a decision. See Section 2 of the Member Guide – Health Division at primesuper.com.au/pds. Information about how super works may change between the time you read this PDS and the day you acquire the product.

Information about the benefits of investing with Prime Super may change between the time you read this PDS and the day you acquire the product.

4. Risks of super

Super is a long-term investment. You save money in a tax-effective environment during your working life to support your lifestyle after you retire.

All investments, including super, have a level of risk. The level of risk you are willing to accept for your super investments will depend on a range of factors, including:

- your age
- your investment timeframe – how long your money will be invested
- the value and amount of your savings, or investments, outside of super
- your risk tolerance – how comfortable you are risking your existing super benefits to grow your investment.

This is known as your 'risk-reward profile'.

Investment types

Super funds invest in assets generally categorised as either 'growth' or 'defensive' assets and typically include:

- shares (growth)
- listed and unlisted property (growth and/or defensive)
- fixed interest (defensive)
- cash (defensive).

Significant risks of super

Depending on the investment strategy chosen, and the assets that make up that strategy, different levels of risk apply. For example, assets that aim for higher returns over the longer term generally carry the highest level of risk in the short term.

When you select an investment option consider that:

- the value of your investment will rise and fall over time
- the level of returns may vary from those anticipated and because rates of return are not guaranteed, you may lose some of your money
- future returns may differ from past returns
- the amount of your investment (including contributions and returns) may not be enough to adequately provide for your retirement
- government policies and laws may change.

Other factors to consider

When you consider investing with Prime Super, be aware that investment market conditions are always changing and may affect the value of your super account.

Your investments will also be subject to:

- movement in exchange rates
- movement in interest rates
- changes in super and tax laws that could affect your benefit or ability to access your benefit
- decisions made by fund managers retained by the Trustee
- changes to the rate of inflation
- concentration or diversification risk
- counterparty risk

- country risk
- liquidity risk
- operational risk
- risks associated with meeting SRI objectives.

i You should read the important information about the risks associated with investing in super before making a decision. See Section 4 of the Member Guide – Health Division at primesuper.com.au/pds. Information about risks associated with investing in super may change between the time you read this PDS and the day you acquire the product.

5. How we invest your money

You can choose from 11 different investment options

It is important to give careful consideration to the differences between investment options, as they can have a significant impact on your super benefit over time.

You can select one or a mix of the options below, depending on your own investment strategy and risk tolerance.

Prime Super’s investment options
Pre-mixed options	Sector options
MySuper	Australian Shares
Managed Growth	International Shares
Alternatives	Property
Conservative	Fixed Interest
Income Focused	Cash
Sustainable Responsible Investment (SRI) balanced

i Risk vs. Return

When choosing an investment option, you should consider the likely investment returns, the risk (e.g. fluctuations in returns) and your investment timeframe (how long your money will be invested).

MySuper investment option

If you do not make an investment choice, your money will automatically be invested in Prime Super’s MySuper investment option.

The MySuper investment option invests in a mixture of growth and defensive assets offering a balance between risk and return.

In the 10 years to 30 June 2021, Prime Super’s MySuper investment option has achieved (net of relevant fees, costs and taxes) 8.89% p.a.* (Includes net returns of Prime Super’s default investment option which became the MySuper option from 1 January 2014).

In the event of a member’s death, the Trustee can change the MySuper investment to transfer a member’s balance to cash. This will occur using the effective date of receipt of the member’s death certificate.

6. Fees and costs

Consumer Advisory Warning

Did you know?

Small differences in both investment performance and fees and costs can have a substantial impact on your long-term returns.

For example, total annual fees and costs of 2% of your account balance rather than 1% could reduce your final return by up to 20% over a 30-year period (for example, reduce it from $100,000 to $80,000). You should consider whether features such as superior investment performance or the provision of better member services justify higher fees and costs.

You or your employer, as applicable, may be able to negotiate to pay lower fees. Ask the Fund or your financial adviser.

To find out more

If you would like to find out more, or see the impact of the fees based on your own circumstances, the Australian Securities and Investments Commission (ASIC) website moneysmart.gov.au has a superannuation calculator to help you check out different fee options.

The text above is required by law. Fees charged by the Trustee are not negotiable.

Fees and costs for the MySuper investment option

This section shows the main fees and other costs that you may be charged for our MySuper investment option and can be used to compare our fees and costs with other funds. Fees and costs may be paid directly from your account or deducted from investment returns.

Other fees and costs may apply. See Section 6 of the Member Guide – Health Division for details of fees and costs, including full fee definitions, at primesuper.com.au/pds. Fees and costs may change at any time without your consent. You will receive at least 30 days' notice before any increase to fees and costs charged directly to members.

The Trustee may change the fees and charges of Prime Super without your consent. You will be given 30 days’ notice of any change, where required.

7. How super is taxed

Super is generally one of the most-tax effective ways for Australians to save for retirement.

Taxation rules apply to both contributions and withdrawals from super, as well as earnings on your investments. These rules change from time to time.

Generally, your super fund pays all tax relating to your benefit and, where applicable, the Trustee will deduct it from your account balance (including where any caps may have been exceeded).

For the most up-to-date tax rates and contribution limits visit the Australian Taxation Office (ATO) website at ato.gov.au/super.

! Tax File Number

You should provide us with your Tax File Number (TFN) when you join Prime Super, but you are not required by law to do so. If you don’t provide your TFN, contributions to your account, and any benefit payable to you, may be taxed at the highest marginal tax rate and we will not be able to accept your member contributions.

Contributions

The amount of tax payable on super contributions depends on the type of contribution. Tax on contributions (if applicable) is deducted from these contributions when they are received by the Trustee, while being allocated to your account.

For tax purposes, contributions to super are either concessional or non-concessional contributions.

Concessional contributions include employer SG contributions and all contributions made from your before-tax salary, including salary sacrifice contributions. They are contributions for which a tax deduction has, or will, be claimed.

Concessional contributions typically attract up to 15% tax.

Non-concessional contributions are those made from after-tax money and usually consist of personal and spouse contributions.

No tax usually applies to these contributions at the super fund level, as tax has already been paid on that money outside the super environment. If you are able to, and you claim a tax deduction on personal contributions, they will become concessional contributions.

Certain requirements must be satisfied for personal contributions to be tax deductible.

Contribution limits

There are limits to the amount of concessionally taxed money you can contribute to super (across all funds you participate in) in any given year. These annual limits are known as ‘caps’.

The caps are set by the government and change from time to time. If these caps are exceeded, additional tax may apply.

Concessional contributions cap

The cap for concessional contributions in the 2022-23 financial year is $27,500, regardless of your age. If you are aged 67 to 74 years certain conditions associated with a ‘work test’ could affect how much you can contribute by way of personal tax deductible contributions. For information about the work test (and a related work test exemption) refer to the Member Guide – Health Division primesuper.com.au/pds or visit ato.gov.au/super.

If you have less than $500,000 in super as at 30 June in the previous financial year, and have not maximised your concessional contributions on a rolling five-year basis, starting 1 July 2018, you can make additional concessional contributions to super in the financial year.

For example, if you made concessional contributions of $15,000 in the 2021-22 financial year, and have super of $500,000 or less, you could make concessional contributions of $35,000 in the 2022-23 financial year without exceeding the concessional contributions cap.

See Section 7 of the Member Guide – Health Division 'How super is taxed' for further details.

⚠ Exceeding the concessional cap

You may pay extra tax if you exceed your concessional cap.

Non-concessional contributions cap

The cap for non-concessional contributions in the 2022-23 year is $110,000. The ability to make non-concessional contributions to super is subject to having a total superannuation balance of less than $1.7 million (indexed periodically) as at 30 June in the previous financial year.

If you are under age 75 at any time during the financial year, you may be able to bring forward up to two additional years of contributions. This allows you to contribute up to $330,000 at any time over three years.

Other conditions may apply and impact how much you can contribute.

If you are age 75 or older, you cannot make after-tax contributions, even if you are still gainfully employed.

⚠ Exceeding the non-concessional cap

You may pay extra tax if you exceed your non-concessional cap.

Investment earnings

Investment earnings are taxed at 15%, less allowable deductions. Some investments, such as property and shares, may carry tax credits that reduce the tax paid by Prime Super.

Tax payable on investment earnings is deducted from the earnings for each of Prime Super's investment options, before the earnings are applied to members' accounts. You will not pay personal income tax on the investment earnings of your super.

Tax on withdrawals

Generally, no tax is payable on withdrawals or benefit payments to those aged 60 and over. If you are under age 60, tax will be deducted from your benefit in accordance with current tax law before it is paid to you.

Death, Total & Permanent Disability, Terminal Illness and Income Protection benefits payable may also be subject to tax. This depends on the circumstances on receipt, whether your benefits are taxable or tax-free, and whether the low tax cap applies. See Section 7 Member Guide – Health Division 'How super is taxed' for full details.

ⓘ You should read the important information about how super is taxed in Section 7 of the Member Guide – Health Division at primesuper.com.au/pds before making a decision. Information about tax may change between the time you read this PDS and the day you acquire the product.

8. Insurance in your super

Insurance cover can be a valuable inclusion in your super, and is designed to protect you and your family when you need it most.

Prime Super offers insurances that can be tailored to suit your needs, including:

- Death only insurance (includes Terminal Illness)
- Death & TPD insurance (includes Terminal Illness)
- Income Protection insurance.

There are costs associated with insurance cover provided through Prime Super. All insurance premiums are deducted directly from your account. The insurance offered to Prime Super members is provided by TAL Life Limited ABN 70 050 109 450 AFSL 237848 (Insurer).

The payment of any claim is subject to the approval of the Insurer, the Trustee and any legislative restrictions that may apply.

Default insurance cover

On or after you join Prime Super's Health Division and meet eligibility requirements (including commencement of cover conditions), you are provided with two units of Death & TPD insurance as default cover, based on the Health Standard occupation rating, designed to provide support to you and your family in the event that you become ill, are injured or die. Default cover may be limited cover in certain circumstances (ie. pre-existing conditions won't be covered).

Default cover is unitised, which means you purchase it in units that have a set price (regardless of your age) and a specified benefit value depending on your age and occupation. Default Death & TPD insurance cover (for two units) costs a total of $1.89 per week ($2.22 gross), which is deducted from your account. Each unit of Death & TPD cover costs $0.94 per week ($1.11 gross).

Default Death & TPD insurance cover (for two units) provides an eligible member on the Standard rating with an amount of cover ranging from $112,340 (age next birthday of 15 - 25) to $4,540 (age next birthday of 66 - 70). The amount of cover is higher for other occupation ratings.

Eligibility for Default insurance

Default insurance is not provided in certain circumstances including where members:

- have an account balance below $6,000 and/or
- are under the age of 25.

If you have an account balance of less than $6,000 and/or you are under the age of 25 you can elect to have default cover in writing. However you should note that you are ineligible for default cover if you are terminally ill, permanently incapacitated or have/are entitled to benefits for these conditions from any insurance policy.

Once your account balance reaches $6,000, and you are at least 25 years of age, you will be provided with Death & TPD (including Terminal Illness) cover, subject to other eligibility requirements, unless you opt out.

⚠ If you are in a White Collar or Professional occupation you should let us know, as it impacts your insured benefits (if eligible).

See Section 8 of the Member Guide – Health Division for details of insurance benefits based on age and occupational classification.

Your Default insurance cover with Prime Super may be cancelled if your account has been inactive for 16 continuous months or more, meaning that no contributions or rollovers have been made to your account in that time.

If you want to retain your insurance, notwithstanding inactivity:

– contribute to your account or roll over funds from another super fund into your Prime Super account before your account has been inactive for 16 months.

OR

– log in to your secure MemberOnline account and opt to keep your insurance cover

OR

– complete and return an Election to Maintain Insurance form.

⚠ While insurance is an important element of super, remember that insurance premiums are deducted from your super account, which will reduce the amount of money available for retirement.

If you have a low account balance, or no longer receive contributions to your account, consider whether maintaining insurance cover is right for you.

⚠ Eligibility requirements, cancellation provisions and other conditions and exclusions apply to insurance cover with Prime Super which may affect a member's entitlement to insurance cover (including default cover). You should read Section 8 of the Member Guide – Health Division before deciding whether the insurance offered is appropriate for you.

If you would like information about insurance in super, please visit ASIC's website moneysmart.gov.au or speak to a licensed financial adviser.

Types of insurance cover

Death only, Death & TPD (including Terminal Illness)

Death & TPD insurance provides an insured lump sum in addition to your account balance if you become totally and permanently disabled or die while you are an insured member of Prime Super. Death & TPD insurance covers you for the event that occurs first, therefore, if you make a claim for TPD and it is accepted by the Insurer, your Death cover would reduce by the amount of your TPD benefit paid. Death only cover is available if you are ineligible for TPD insurance, or where you choose not to be insured for TPD.

Terminal Illness insurance provides an insured lump sum in place of a Death benefit if you are diagnosed with a Terminal Illness, as defined in the Member Guide – Health Division, while an insured member of Prime Super. You must have Death or Death & TPD cover to make a Terminal Illness claim.

Income Protection

If applied for and accepted by the Insurer, Income Protection will provide a regular income of up to 85% of your monthly salary (unless your cover exceeds 75% of your salary, in which case up to 10% is paid to Prime Super as a super contribution).

This is paid for up to two years should you, in the opinion of the Insurer, be unable to work in your usual occupation due to illness or injury for longer than your chosen Waiting Period (the time period after which your benefit will commence to be paid).

If you return to work after you become ill or injured you may still be eligible to receive a partial disability benefit, if you are working in a reduced capacity and are earning a lower income.

Costs of voluntary insurance cover

Prime Super offers fixed and unitised Death and TPD insurance cover. The following figures highlight costs for unitised insurance cover. Please refer to the Member Guide – Health Division for details and costs of Fixed cover.

– Death only insurance (including Terminal Illness):
$0.63 per unit per week ($0.74 gross).

– Death & TPD (including Terminal Illness) insurance:
$0.94 per unit per week ($1.11 gross).

The cost of Income Protection insurance in the Health Division varies depending on the level of cover, your age, gender, occupation category and the Waiting Period you select. See Section 8 of the Member Guide – Health Division for details.

⚠ Payment of insurance premiums

Insurance premiums are deducted monthly from your account, unless you decline or cancel your cover.

Applying for or changing cover

Subject to eligibility requirements and acceptance by the Insurer, you may apply for voluntary death only or Death and TPD insurance cover if you do not meet the eligibility requirements for Default Death and TPD cover, apply for Income protection cover, or increase your insurance cover at any time via MemberOnline or by completing an Insurance application/variation form.

You may also decrease your insurance cover at any time via MemberOnline or by completing an Insurance reduction/cancellation/opt out form.

Cooling-off period

If you have applied to join Prime Super and changed your mind, you can cancel your membership and not incur any fees if you do so within a 14 day cooling-off period that begins from the earlier of the date you receive your Welcome Letter or the end of 5 business days after we receive your application.

However, any government taxes or charges paid, or payable, by Prime Super as a result of your application will be deducted. Any contributions made will also be adjusted to reflect any investment earnings, positive or negative, before being refunded. Therefore, if you cancel your application during the cooling-off period, the amount returned to you may not be the amount of your original contribution.

The cooling-off period ceases once you have exercised a right in respect of membership; for example, making an investment choice.

3 Provide your Tax File Number

We ask for your Tax File Number (TFN) when you join Prime Super, but you are not required by law to provide it. However, if you don't provide your TFN:

- we may not be able to accept all types of contributions to your account, and
- higher taxes may be applied to your contributions and benefits.

If you provide your TFN it is easier to trace your super so you receive all your benefits when you retire.

The Trustee is authorised by law to collect your TFN under the Superannuation Industry (Supervision) Act 1993 (Cth) and to use and disclose it for lawful purposes.

We may disclose your TFN to another super fund, when your benefits are being transferred, unless you request otherwise in writing. Your TFN will otherwise remain confidential.

Insert your nine digit TFN here:

4 Your investment choice

You can choose how to invest your super from our 11 different options set out in the table opposite. To invest in specific options, nominate the percentage of your account you want to invest in each option. Make sure to nominate whole numbers that add up to 100%.

If you don't make an investment choice, your account will be invested in the MySuper option.

The PDS and Member Guide provides an overview of each investment option and you can visit the Investment section of our website for information on returns.

Notes:

¹ Your account balance must be greater than $10,000 to invest, or remain, in the Property and Alternative investment options. If the account balance becomes less than $10,000, the selected investment will be switched to MySuper. Refer to the Member Guide – Health Division for more information.

² Income earnings (net of investment fees and costs, transaction costs and investment taxes) for the Income Focused option are distributed monthly to the Cash option. Members may choose to keep the earnings in the Cash option or re-invest the money into another investment option.

5 Insurance

Eligible members will automatically (subject to eligibility requirements¹) receive two units of Death & TPD insurance as default cover on or after joining Prime Super. You may be eligible if you are aged 25 to 69 years and you have an account balance of $6,000 or more.

If you are between the aged 14 years and 9 months to 24 years old and/or your account balance is less than $6,000, you can choose to opt-in (tell us that you want insurance cover) for default Death & TPD cover, subject to any other eligibility requirements.

Any default cover is unitised, which means each unit of default Death & TPD cover has a specific value, based on a Health Standard occupational rating (unless you notify us otherwise) and your age. In some circumstances, default cover may be limited cover (ie. the cover is not available for pre-existing conditions). You should read Section 8 of the Member Guide – Health Division for information on the different levels of cover, including individual unit values, and associated terms and conditions before deciding whether the insurance offered is appropriate for you.

If you have a terminal illness, are permanently incapacitated or a similar benefit is paid/payable to you under any insurance, you are ineligible for default cover. If this applies to you, you should opt out of default cover or contact us, as you may pay for cover you cannot claim on.

Special offer when Insurance starts

Once your insurance starts you are eligible for the following special offer, which is valid for 60 days from the date your default cover commences.

You may apply for up to six units of Death & TPD cover in addition to your two units of default cover.

You can also apply for fixed cover to the value of 8 units and up to $5,000 per month of Income Protection insurance cover based on a waiting period² of either 30, 60 or 90 days.

If you don't want insurance through the fund, you can opt out.

Choose what you would like to do next:

1. Keep the two units of automatic default cover I am/become eligible for – skip to section 9 of this form (section 8 is optional).
2. Opt in to default Death & TPD cover if you are currently aged 14 years and 9 months to 24 years old, and/or your account balance is less than $6,000, mark an 'X' in the box:

I would like to opt in to default Death & TPD cover I am eligible for. I understand that insurance premiums are deducted from my super account from the commencement of cover, which will reduce the amount of money available for retirement. I understand that marking this box will also mean I have opted in to maintain my insurance, even if my account becomes inactive³.

3. Special offer - add additional insurance by accepting the special offer: complete your duty to take reasonable care (section 6), complete the special offer parts of section 7, then continue to work through this form.
4. Opt-out of, or cancel your default Death & TPD cover – please read and agree to the following statement by marking and 'X' in the box:

I confirm that I am opting-out of any default cover I am/become eligible for and understand this means I will have no insurance in the fund. If I cancel within 60 days from the date your default cover commences, any premiums I pay/have paid will be refunded to my account. I understand that by requesting this, I have opted out of insurance from the beginning of my insurance cover and I cannot make any claim for an illness/injury that occurred while I did not have insurance cover. If I apply for insurance through Prime Super in the future, I understand that my application will be subject to assessment by the insurer and I may need to provide detailed health and medical information.

Note: Your default Death & TPD cover is based on a Health Standard occupational rating and your age. If you are in a low risk occupation you may be entitled to be in a White Collar or Professional category which offers a higher level of cover.

If you want to change your insurance occupation rating you can do so on MemberOnline or by completing the Insurance application/variation form available on our website.

- ¹ Eligibility requirements: Insurance cover is provided subject to meeting the eligibility and commencement of cover conditions of the insurance policy. Refer to the PDS and Member Guide – Health Division for more details.
- ² Waiting period is the time you have to wait before you qualify to receive income protection benefit payments. The insurance premiums you pay depend on the waiting period you select.
- ³ Insurance cover may cease in other circumstances.

6 Duty to take reasonable care

When you apply for insurance, you are treated as if you are applying for cover under an individual consumer insurance contract. A person who applies for cover under a consumer insurance contract has a legal duty to take reasonable care not to make a misrepresentation to the Insurer before the contract of insurance is entered into.

A misrepresentation is a false answer, an answer that is only partially true, or an answer which does not fairly reflect the truth. This duty also applies when extending or making changes to existing insurance, and reinstating insurance.

If you do not meet your duty

If you do not meet your legal duty, this can have serious impacts on your insurance. Under the Insurance Contracts Act 1984 (Cth) there are a number of different remedies that may be available to the Insurer. They are intended to put the Insurer in the position it would have been in if the duty had been met. For example, the Insurer may:

- avoid the cover (treat it as if it never existed);
- vary the amount of the cover; or
- vary the terms of the cover.

If you apply for life insurance, you will be treated as if you are applying for cover under an individual consumer insurance contract. The Insurer will conduct a process called underwriting. It's how it decides whether it can cover you, and if so on what terms and at what cost.

As part of underwriting, the Insurer will ask questions it needs to know the answers to. These will be about your personal circumstances, such as your health and medical history, occupation, income, lifestyle, pastimes, and current and past insurance.

The information you provide in response to those questions, and in Declarations you make relating to your personal circumstances, will be vital to the Insurer's decision. As such, when applying for life insurance you have a legal duty to take reasonable care not to make a misrepresentation to the Insurer. A misrepresentation is a false answer, an answer that is only partially true, or an answer which does not fairly reflect the truth. This duty also applies when extending or making changes to existing insurance, and reinstating insurance.

If you do not meet your duty

If you do not meet your legal duty, this can have serious impacts on your insurance. Your cover could be avoided (treated as if it never existed), the amount of cover varied or its terms may be changed. This may also result in a claim being declined or a benefit being reduced. Whether the Insurer can exercise one of these remedies depends on a number of factors, including:

- whether reasonable care was taken not to make a misrepresentation. This depends on all of the relevant circumstances
- what the Insurer would have done if the duty had been met – for example, whether it would have offered cover, and if so, on what terms
- whether the misrepresentation was fraudulent; and
- in some cases, how long it has been since the cover started.

Before any of these remedies are exercised, the Insurer will explain the reasons for its decision, how to respond and provide further information, and what you can do if you disagree.

Guidance for answering questions

You are responsible for the information provided to the Insurer. When answering questions, please:

Think carefully about each question before you answer. If you are unsure of the meaning of any question, please ask us before you respond.

- answer every question.
- answer truthfully, accurately and completely. If you are unsure about whether you should include information, please include it.
- review your application carefully before it is submitted. If someone else helped prepare your application (for example, your adviser), please
- check every answer (and if necessary, make any corrections) before the application is submitted.

There may be circumstances where the Insurer later investigates whether the information given to it was true. For example, it may do this when a claim is made.

Changes before your cover starts

Before your cover starts, the Insurer may ask you whether the information that has been given as part of your application for insurance remains accurate or whether there has been a change to any of your circumstances. As any changes might require further assessment or investigation, it could save time if you let us or the Insurer know about any changes when they happen.

If you need help

It's important that you understand your obligations and the questions that are being asked. Please contact us for help if you have difficulty understanding the process of obtaining insurance or answering any questions.
